

Call for chapters

Rebuilding after the Great Confinement: Human, Economic and Technological Levers

After economic activity suffered a dramatic contraction of historic proportions from Covid-induced confinement, households, businesses, industries and governments have now entered a recovery stage of indeterminate duration. Experts point out that the business environment of the following years will be characterized by high uncertainty. It is clear that a broad multidisciplinary perspective is essential to succeed in this stage.

We invite submissions of original chapters which examine the various human, economic, and technological levers that are being applied during this recovery stage. Conceptual, theoretical and empirical studies are welcome.

Submission Procedure

- Manuscript originality: All chapters must be original, unpublished, not be currently under review elsewhere, or a revised version of a previously published work.
- All submissions should be copyedited and free of plagiarism.
- Manuscripts will be checked for plagiarism before submitting for review. Please ensure that all information taken from other sources/authors is properly paraphrased, cited and referenced. Any instance of plagiarism will be cause for removal from the review process.
- Peer Review: All chapters will undergo a double-blind peer-review process before being accepted for publication.
  - The Editorial Committee may desk-reject a manuscript due to inconsistency with the book's scope and editorial objective, or it is deemed to be poorly written.
  - Chapter acceptance will be based on two reviews recommending acceptance.
- Submissions should be emailed to at least two members of the book's Editorial Committee, emurillo@up.edu.mx and/or pmorganti@up.edu.mx and/or jmorenoe@up.edu.mx
